CATHOLIC CEREMONIES.

The Great Centennial at Baltimore Opened at the Cathedral.

A GORGEOUS PROCESSION

Of Six Hundred of the Clergy in the Presence of Thousands.

As Impressive and Magnificent Scene. Distinguished Prelates from All Parts of the World-Archbishop Ryan's Eloquent Centennial Oration - A Very Beautiful Address.

BALTIMORE, MD., Nov. 10 .- The most important group of events in the history of the Catholic church in America began mencement of a triple celebration, the hundredth anniversary the appointment of the first American Catholic Bishop, the inauguration of the first congress of Catholic layman held in the United States and the dedication of the new National University for Catholics. Thousands of strangers were in Baltilike clock work.

The hall in which the priests assembled was elaborately decorated. Above the doors were the Papal colors, yellow and white, and stretching upward to the eaves were great streamers of red, white ing two and two, clad in white surplice and black casocks and berettas.

At the door-way of the Cardinal's house and leading up the broad steps, with sabres and polished helmets glittering in the bright morning sunlight, were two double lines of guards. Here again the Papal colors and the stars and stripes were intermingled. In all directions the street seemed filled with people and the open windows of the surrounding buildings each had their quota. Presently, while the white surpliced priests were opening ranks, a mass of purple-enveloped, figures were seen in Bishop Carroll was consecrated in 1790. Presently, while the white surpliced priests were opening ranks, a mass of purple-enveloped ligures were seen in the Cardinal's doorway. It was the gathering of nearly all the Catholic bishops and archbishops of the United States, with representatives from Mexico, Canada, Eugland and Rome. The prelates now came forth from the big portico in pairs, and as each stepped into the street their costly robes were caught up by diminutive allar boys in waiting, who then walked behind, taking carretthat the brilliant fabrics were kept stain-

In the Cathedral, ten minutes later the scene was simply magnificent. The pows throughout the church were crowded to the utmost with laity. In striking contrast with the dark clothed aggregation thus formed were the aisles, center, front and sides, packed with the snow surpliced priests. Against both laity and priests shone the purple ranks of the prelates inside the sanctuary. On either side was the dais for the cardi-

At the high altar stood the mitred anel at Freideix fasing the altar. Back of them was a row of richly arrayed acolytes bearing lighted brongs torches. As Cardinal Globbon retired to his dais the reporters in the improvised press gallery noticed for the first time not six feet away from him in the sanctuary, among the abbotts and other special dignitaries, the black face of Father Tolton, of Chicago, the first colored Catholic priest ordained in America.

Frobably the most impressive part of the mass, next to the consecration, was

ABCHRISHOF BYAN'S ADDRESS.

The Archbishop's address was substantially as follows:

Mas Recread Representative of the Supress Pensity, Incread Representative of the Longo in the Solit chapter of the Book of Equipment of the Solit chapter of the Book of Equipment of the Solit chapter of the Book of Equipment of the Pensity of the Juga priest Simon, and a magnificant description of the religious Geremonies which he performed in the Temple of God, sarrounded by his priests. The ceremonies of the Temple forestandowed those of the Christian Church and the descriptions of this chapter seem like a prophet's vision of a pontifical or papal mass, and you behold enacted here today a scene like that glorious one narrated in this chapter.

As the student of our National history, in observing the rise of the young Republic itself, naturally fixes his attention on the great leader who embodled in himself the principles and the spirit of that period, and from the study of the character of George Washington, learns the genius of the time; so in our ecclesiastical history we behold one man, the first Catholic Bishop of these States, at the time of this great centennial celebration of his appointment, Like Simon, the high priest, he fortified the moral temple and enlarged the City of God, and the Bishops that followed him have "walked in his light and in the brightness of his rising."

His first dioceasan synod was held in 1791, the year after his consceration. It consisted of only twenty-one priests, but they represented seven different nationalities, not merely countries of birth, which may be of comparatively little importance with peoples of the same race, but seven different and somewhat antagonistic peoples, American, Irish, English, German, French, Belgian and antagonistic peoples, American, Irlah English, German, Prench, Belgian and Holland, yet all acted in their true char acter of American priests under his lead

Bishop Carroll was an American patriot, as well as a Christian bishop.

The new Bishop thoroughly appreciate how important for the Church's progress as well as for the stability of the State was the diffusion of education. One of his first projects was to foster the Georgetown college.

Of all the false charges alleged against the Catalogic Charlette.

Of all the false charges alleged against the Catholic Church the most senseless and unfounded is "that she fears science and is the enemy of education." Her opponents, simost in the same breath charge her with being the foe at once and the monopolizer of education.

After dwelling on the life of Bishop Carroll and the early church of America, Archbishop Ryan continued addressing the laity:

And on this great historic occasion Thousands of strangers were in Baltimore to witness the spectacles—four times as many people, not counting local Catholics, as could possibly be accommodated in the Cathodral, where the initial scenes were to be witnessed. So great was the pressure for seats that persons known to have traveled across the continent from California expressly to be present, were among those disappointed in not securing admission.
Except for the inevitable inconveniences due to overcrowding, everything moved like clock-work. GROWTH OF THE CHURCH.

He then paid a glowing tribute to the editors during the century, and contin-uing, said: By the united action of THE GRAND PROCESSION OF CLEEGYMEN.

When all was ready 600 clergy, walking two and two, clad in white surplice and black cassocks and berettas.

eral statistics of the church are: When Bishop Carroll was consecrated in 1790, the entire population of the United States was a little less than $4,000,000, and the Catholic population was estimated at about 40,000. There is now a Catholic population of 9,000,000; 8,000 priests, 10,500 churches and chapels, 27 seminaries and 650 colleges and academies, and over 3,000 parish schools. The remarkable statistics quoted become marvelous when we consider the antagonism of the who then walked bebind, taking care that the brilliant fabrics were kept stainless for the ceremonies to come.

Here and there among the silken purple vestments of the bishops could be seen the coarse brown or white garb of an abbott. Along the long lines of priests the prelates threaded their way all around the square to the main entrance of the cathedral, the rear of the procession being brought up by the tall lique of Archbishop Feehan, of Chicago, who immediately preceded a gold-ton vestured cross-bearer, followed by two spare, slight looking men almost hidden in dazzling scarlet.

The two men in scarlet were the Cardinals of the Roman Church in America (Gibbons, of Baltimore, and Taschereau, of Quebec). Eight acolytes held their long vestments and surrounding were their monsigneurs, with the papa dele

Probably the most impressive part of the mass, next to the consecration, was the contering of the Papal blessing. The venerable Archbishop at the alter seemed to feel it a doubly solemn moment when, turning to the congregation, he paused for an instant i their, while the people in the charch keelt, he raised his hand and slowly made the sign of the cross.

The mass ended with a special intercession for the Pope chanted by all the clery. The first oration of the centren ary followed. St. Many's, W. Va., Nov. 10.—Barnes-dale & Moore's "Big John" well, on the doing 300 barrels a day with a prospect of being a paying well-for a long time of being a paying well for a long time to come. The old "Barnt Well," which started off four years ago at 200 barrels, is now doing 30 barrels a day, showing that it has a big pool to draw from. The "Big John" operators have another rig up on the Haumat and expect to start the drill early in the week. They have just begun to drill on the Friend Cochrane farm, about 400 feet northwest of the big well. The Cochrane No. 6, south west of the John Hammat, is due in the saud this week. It is an inside well, but there is no way to predict what it will do.

Hammat, is due in the sand this week. It is an inside well, but there is no way to predict what it will do.

The Cochrane Nos. 8 and 9 are also completing rigs, which will extend the field still further northwest. Boyle & Barnesdale are drilling on the Corbitt farm, about a half mile northwest of the "Big John." This well is looked on with great interest by oil men, as it is well located and thought to be an almost certain producer. The same operators have another well on the Ruttencutter farm, at Belmont, which is expected to be a gasser, or may strike shallow oil. It is regarded as being too far east for a deep well. If it brings in gas the product will be used for drilling. The Duncan Oil Company, of Pittsburgh, have a rig up on the Smith farm, still further northwest. B. B. Campbell, of the Bear Creek Refining Company, of Pittsburgh, has a rig on the Bruwse farm, between Raven Rock and St. Mary's, about 10 degrees northeast of the line of present development. This is considered a strictly wildcat operation, and there is not much hope for oil. Campbell is also putting up a rig on the Cotton farm, south of St. Mary's, and has leased 30 not much hope for oil. Campbell is also putting up a rig on the Cotton farm, south of St. Mary's, and has leased 30 acres of the Mart Riggs farm, about three-fourths of a mile southeast of St. Mary's, for which he paid a bonus of $100 and $50 per month, in addition to royalty. Operations will begin here at once for a shallow well.

The Story & Ackerly, on Green Run, near Vauciuse, is still shut down and a mystery. It, has made showing enough to run up the price of land in that vicinity. It pumped thirty barrels in two hours and shut own to get more territory, prices were going up so rapidly.

that vicinity. It pumped thirty barrels in two hours and shut down to get more territory, prices were going up so rapidly. Story & Ackerly are also putting up a derrick on ex-Governor Jackson's farm at Vaucluse, and one on the Hendershott farm, both for shallow oil, but failing to get that will go deeper, as they are in a fair line. Whitehead, a Pennsylvania oil operator, has leased three farms on the Ohio side opposite this place. He must begin drilling within thirty days or forfeit his leasee, and has gone for his machinery to begin at once. The well on Bell's Run, on the farm of William Eddy, was brought in on Friday and the oil filled the hole when the bit was only about a foot in the sand. Tools were taken out, the pump put to work, and at last accounts she was doing six barrels and hour. This well is owned by Brown, Huggins & Davidson. The same parties have another derrick up within a quarter of a mile of this, and will begin urifling at once. In the field are thirty wells in all stages. The shallow wells are pumpers, the deep wells flowers.

Craig's pipe line is expected in within thirty days. This will afford competition for the oil and will increase the present premium of 10 cents a barrel to 25 cents. Everything in the way of territory on the oil line, on the West Viginia side, has been taken up for a distance of four miles each way from present development. The land is being taken by men sho will operate it, the conditions under which it is taken leaving no room for holding on mere speculation. The fact that in the whole field only five deep wells have shown up dry holes encourages experienced men speculation. The fact that in the whole field only five deep wells have shown up dry holes encourages experienced men to send their money down with the drill. The production will be doubled within the next thirty days.

yesterday, but her capacity is not known, even to the driller. Oil men are watching this well closely while they are gathering in everything they can get, but new operations are delayed to see what the Jackson well will finally do. The drill will soon be started in the But rig in town.

The new hotel opened yesterday to a good business, and the old house has its hands full. It is expected that a well will be located this week on the Paw-Paw land of the West Virginia Company in the Doll's Ran region. This company's well on the Dodd farm, which imade such a begin and fall is slowing considerable antiply in this county, shipping in drilling material whose destiny is a mystery and taking as much more land as he can get.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 .- Microscopiata Tolman and Telfield and Chemist Haines, of Rush Medical College, were the three prominent witnesses in the Cronin trial yesterday. Stains from the floor of the yesterday. Stains from the floor of the Carlson cottage, the hair found clinging to the trunk S. B. Simonds bought, the hair cut from the head of the dead doctar, the single strand of hair discovered on a cake of sosp in the kitchen of the cottage and freeh and dried blood from the trunk itself were the articles on which the experis made their experiments. Chemist Haines' assignment was to determine whether the reddish stains were of blood, and if so, the express a scientific opinion as the character or nature of the corpuscies. The work of determining the probable origin of the blood and the relaxation of the one hair to another was left to the microscopists. The lawyers of Coughlin, O'sullivan, Kunze and Hurke, finding themselves in the last ditch, will make a desperate affort to prove that the blood found in the cottage, if not in the trunk, came from a lower animal whose blood corrected. The Sorrow in Lexington on Account rom a lower animal whose blood cor-descles closely resemble those of an adult man or woman.

Chemist Haines subjected the stained chips from the floor of the cottage to was used in the fourth test. The first experiment was to make a solution in water of a portion of the stains. With this was combined a quantity of a solution of gum guiacum and peroxide of hydrogen. A beautiful blue color positively proved the existence of blood almost instantly. Continuing his examination Chemist Haines mixed a solution of the stains with some very strong acetic soid and allowed the mixture to evaporate slowly. The residum showed acetic scid and allowed the mixture to evaporate slowly. The residuum showed the chrystais characteristic of blood. Blood corpuscles were found in the third test, when the chrystals were mascerated in glycerine. These tests, to the chemiat's mind, were indubitable proof that the stains were made of blood, but chemical science could not distinguish between the different kinds of blood.

The fourth 'test was relative to the The fourth test was relative to the single strand of hair found on the cake of soap. This strand was lighter in color in some portions than in others. Dr. Croniu's hair was brown. The fact that the single strand appeared light in color to the naked eye seemed to satisfy the delense that it could not have come from Dr. Croniu's body.

THE DEFENSE KNOCKED OUT. But Chemist Haines' fourth test showed similar to the color of the strand found on the soap.

Microscopist Tolman was satisfied in his own mind that the blood he examined on the chips of wood came from a human body. The manner in which the expert went about his tests was interesting to the spectators. The first hing he did after the articles were given to him for examination was to scrape the stains off the wood and place them in a solution of common salt in scrape the stains off the wood and place them in a solution of common salt in water of the specific gravity or density of 1,055—the specific gravity of human blood when in the body. This was done to restore as hearly as possible the corpuscles to their normal size. The specimens remained in the solution 36 hours. At the end of this time the fibria had dissolved and the corpuscles floated away from the rest of the water. A powerful microscope was then used for the negativement of the corpuscles. The average size of the discs correspond for the measurement of the corpuscles. The average size of the discs correspond with the average size of all the human corpuscles the expert had ever measured. Mingled with the stains the keen eye of the microscopist discovered minute particles of wood and numerous small hairs or fuzz, such as grow on the factor hands. There were also bits of the epithelium or skin and a number of mascerated corpuscles.

THERE WAS NO MISTARE

The small hairs could not be seen ful lens of the microscope their roots could be discerned. Microscopist Tolman had examined the hair, of nearly every known animal in the world, and he was prepared to swear that the strands of hair found among the corpuscles and taken from the trunk the grew upon a human body. I met Colonel Goodloe soveral times at meetings of the National Republican Committee during the late campaign, and got to know him right well. I always found him one of the most affable, genial and in every way pleasant men it has ever been my good fortune to meet. Knowing him thus, I cannot believe that he would ever be an aggressor in an affair of this kind. "Goodloe is the kind of man who in a body of twenty-five or thirty men, the asjority of whom are but slightly acquainted with the others, would in an hour's time have the entire party on the most friendly and intimate terms. He apparently imparts his affability to the others, and helps things along with an inexhaustible fund of good stories, each of which has a brilliant point. In the last campaign, next to Clarkson and Conger I considered him one of the of which has a brilliant point. In the last campaign, next to Clarkson and Conger I considered him one of the most valuable inside workers. The last meeting of the committee I attended, only a few days before the close of the campaign, I found Goodlos surrounded on all sides by people wanting to see him on business and with telegrams pouring in on him almost every minute, yet he was cool, collected and smilling through it all. He probably knew it was a fight to the death with Swope and tought his hardest."

framed the word "Spellbinders" as applied to the formation of the Republican spellbinders' Association which celebrated Harrison's election with a big dinner at Delmonico's. Capt. Jack Urawford, the Association's poet told the story in a poeur read on that occasion; it was based on some of Goodioë's stories about the stories told him by speakers in the employ of the committee as to how they held their audience "spell-bound."

UNUSUALLY MILD ADDRESS

Delivered on the Occasion-Mrs. Parsons Flaunts the Red Flag, but the Police Take it in-Falling Off in the Attendance.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 .- The Anarchist tame, in fact the only noteworthy inident was furnished by Mrs. Lucy Parsons, who, in defiance of the police prohibition of red flags, hung one from wankee avenue early in the day. A policeman was sent to her house to no ify her to take down the anarchial emblem. "This is a free country." said Mrs. Parsons. "Why can't I wave the emblem. "This is a free country," said Mrs. Parsons. "Why can't I wave the flag of my doctrine?"

"Because my orders are to pull it down," said the patrolman, and without further parley he tors down the flag and took it to the station. Mrs. Parsons is med for a while and then left for Waldheim. The day was dreary and cold, and lack of enthusiasm was the most noticeable feature of the celebration at Waldheim cemetery. From a crowd of 5,000 last year the attendance to-day had dwindled to less than 2,000, and of this number not a few were merely curious spectators.

During the exercises Mrs. Spies, Mrs. Schwab and Mrs. Fischer stood by the graves, while Mrs. Parsons, sitting on the damp ground by her husband's grave, with her little boy by her side, buried her face in her handkerchief and abandoned herself to tears. Paul Grottkau then spoke in a much milder vein than last year. His address was principally devoted to the "crimes" of the dam, the breaking of which caused the Johnstown disaster. "Only through blood," said he, "can white slavery be abolished. Don't imagine we are at peace. We are at war with existing conditions. Of course we can't have a battle every day, but the forces will gather and the inevitable conflict in which we hope to be successful will come."

No disturbances occurred throughout the day. Indeed the lack of enthusiasm which generally characterizes the Anarchists gatherings was the chief feature.

that the latter declined to advise the sultan to recognize Prince Ferdinand without material guarantees of the support of the Dreibund if Russia astacked Turkey on the Armenian frontier or at any other point.

The Grand Visier declared that Turkey had as much to fear from Austria as from Russia, and she could not forward the Kalnoky policy unless she obtained an equivalent. They attitude of the Porte appears to have confirmed Bismarck's opposition to intervention in favor of Prince Ferdinand. DAYTON, O., Nov. 10 .- In an attempt arrest John Franz, the only one of the bars, Officers Kirby and Keller had a desperate struggle. Franz is wanted in Indiana for burglary, and the ed in Indiana for burgiary, and the officers were warned that he would kill to evade capture. The officers spled their man and grappled with him on the street. Franz whipped out a revolver, but before he could pull the trigger. Kirby had him by the wrist, and a struggle ensued. Franz was held so that he could not pull the trigger, and Officer. Keller rushed to Kirby's assistance. The three men then rolled in the maddy street in their terrible encounter. But the officer got the revolver away from ister, approved the Kalnoky project, but the insistance of the Chancellor has overborne both. Official circles in Vienna are sore over this check to Austrian diplomacy, and attribute Bismarck's action to promises which he gave the Czar while the latter was in the circle. street in their terrible encounter. But the officer got the revolver away from Franz before his father, who was near, could come to his assistance. Kuller pulled his revolver and threatened to shoot the first man that interfered. Franz now was easily conquered, and the trio, covered from head to foot with the mud in which they had been rolling about in their struggles, were taken to the station house, and Franz was finally placed safely behind the bars. Since his arrest he said he tried to kill Kirby because he mistook him for Charley Page; the detective who has been dogging him for months. The official belief here is that the Chancellor rosisted Kainoky because he was averse to a measure which was likely to produce acute agitation in the Balkans. The recognition of Prince Perdinand is therefore indefinitely postponed. Just before leaving Constantinople Emperor William had his longest conference with the Sultan. Said Pasha and Count Herbert Bismarck were present.

After the conference Count Herbert visited the English Ambassy, meeting Sir W. A. White, the Eritish minister, and Sir Edward Vincent, with reference and our Edward vincent, with research to the Anglo-Turkish negatiations over the conversions of the Egyptian debt and the continued occupation of Egypt. PLENTY OF COKE, BUT NO CARS. The Freight Deadlock Continues Without Pittsbungii, Nov. 10.—The deadlock in the railroad freight transportation system is without any change. Furnace owners are still unable to get adequate supplies of coke, and in the Connellaville region the loss to operators from unability to ship their product is serious. During the last week there was a deficiency in cars of between 700 and 1,000 of what were needed to fill pressing orders. There does not seem to be any relief either for this anomalous condition of affairs, unless some means of transportation by balloon or parachute is devised,
